

seven days in succession, contribute to the growth of beards and mustachios. Oil, cooked with its quarter part of the expressed juice of Bhringaraja and Gunjd-powders, helps the growth of hair. For the cure of baldness (alopacea), first rub the scalp with a paste of Ela\ Mansi, Kushtham, and Murd, and then apply a plaster of pasted Guuja berries over it. Applications of plasters of the powdered pulps of mango stones impart a thickness and silky gloss to the hairs and prevent their falling off. Anointment of the head with a medicinal oil cooked with Vidanga, Gandhapashana, and Manah-Shila" and with the admixture of cow's urine, four times its own weight, destroys lice and dandruff. O thou bull-riding deity, applications of freshly burnt conch-shell powders mixed with rubbings of lead and water to the scalf impart a raven like blackness to the hair. A hair dye composed of Bhringaraja, iron-dusts, Triphala, Vijapurakau, Nili and Karaviram boiled with an equal quantity, of treacle make! the grey hairs of old men black again. Pulps of mango-stones) Triphala, Nili, Bhringaraja, steel-powders, dissolved in Kinjika make a good hair-dye. Plasters of Chakramarda-seeds, Kushtham and Eranda-roots pasted with warm Kanjikam and applied to the scalp prove curative in all diseases of the head (cephalagia). A medicinal "oil cooked with its quarter part of cow's urine and with the addition of rock salt, Vach, Hingu, Kushtham, Nageshvaram,

Shata-pushpi, and Devadaru, poured into the ears, relieves earache. Similarly, ear-drops composed of rock salt and lamb's urine prove beneficial in otalgia with a fetid discharge, and germination of parasites in the tympanum* Pourings of the expressed juice of the Malati leaves, and cow's urine arrest fetid discharges from the ears. Rubbings of a plaster composed of Kushtha, Masha, Marichairij Tagaram, Pippali, Apamarga, Asfavagandhd, the two kinds of Vrihati, and mustard. Yava, and Tilam pasted with onion, ey and rock-salt .remove the numbness of the penis and